

Is it ever a challenge to feed your family?

Do you ever worry that your family will run out of food?

Do you live in a household with young children aged 0-8?

Claire Crosby from Indy Hunger Network would like to learn about your experience and will pay you for your time.

We have a research grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation to investigate the SNAP program and how to improve access to food assistance among households with young children. Whether you have applied for SNAP or not, we are interested in talking with you.

We are currently organizing focus groups or interviews in the area. These will be held remotely over Zoom and/or telephone to ensure the safety of participants and researchers.

If you would like to participate, please contact:
